April 4, 1941.

Assassination of Tung Chu (董 樞), translator of C. M. P.

At 12.20 p.m. April 3, 1941, Tung Chu alias Tung Siao Han (董 肖 涵), translator, employed by the French Municipal Council, was fatally shot by some unknown person on Avenue Joffre near Rue Baron Gros, whilst en route from office to his home at 223 Rue Lagrene.

A suspect was arrested by the French Police near the scene of the crime. The arrested person, named Chang Shi Kwen, (張 錫 坤) is an ex-constable of the French Police who is said to have joined some "special service" organization in the Western District.

The reason for the assassination is at present unknown, but it is thought the motive might be of a political nature, as the deceased often showed strong patriotic feelings.
